RECOGNITION & REPORTING

Spot risk. Escalate decisively. Report correctly.

03 AML Red Flags in Accounting & Audit

- Unexplained related-party transactions
- Suspicious journal entries
- Fictitious suppliers or invoices
- Unusual shareholder loans
- Large unexplained cash transactions
- Complex offshore structures
- Transactions inconsistent with the client's business
- Unusual year-end movements
- Management reluctance to provide documents

04 STR/SAR & goAML Reporting

- Identifying suspicious activity
- Internal escalation
- Compliance review
- STR/SAR decision-making
- goAML reporting
- Supporting documentation
- Confidentiality and tipping-off requirements

AUDIT MINDSET

The key question is not only "Is the accounting treatment correct?" — it is also "Does the activity make commercial sense, and can it be substantiated?"

Train teams to recognise anomalies early, document the reasoning and follow the correct escalation path without tipping off the client.

FROM POLICY TO PRACTICE

Be ready for the engagement — and the inspection

05 AML Responsibilities During an Audit

- Client acceptance and continuation
- Understanding ownership and business activity
- Reviewing unusual transactions
- Identifying suspicious accounting patterns
- Documenting AML concerns
- Escalating issues to the Compliance Officer
- Maintaining appropriate records

06 Regulatory Inspection & Audit Readiness

- AML policies and procedures
- Business Risk Assessment
- Client Risk Assessment
- KYC and UBO files
- PEP and sanctions-screening records
- STR/SAR records
- AML training records
- Compliance reviews
- Independent AML testing
- Corrective-action tracking

Review a fictional company's accounts and identify:

- incomplete KYC / UBO information
- suspicious journal entries
- unusual related-party payments
- unexplained cash movements
- potential red flags and whether STR/SAR escalation is required

LEARNING OUTCOME

Participants leave able to identify AML risks in accounting and audit engagements, conduct appropriate due diligence, recognise suspicious financial activity, understand reporting obligations and prepare for an AML regulatory inspection.
